

My Plans For 2021

Post by "Titus" of March 15, 2021 at 4:16 PM

Quote from Cassius

I want to get back to developing a completely free and open set of core texts that will always be easily findable and downloadable.

Reminds me of the mentioning of "maps" by DeWitt, progressing from the little epitome to the big epitome. Is it this that comes to your mind or rather a general digital library project without organized suggestions for reading?

Quote from Cassius

So my specific goal here is to at least make a start at an organizational document that can provide a structure for local teamwork, probably also basing it totally openly and public domain as with the github link above.

Do you rather think of the approach how to start any kind of group generally or do you also refer to which could be the content and focus of such an group?