

Toward A Better Understanding of Epicurean Justice And Injustice (With Examples of "Just" and "Unjust")

I'm wondering if there is an analogy with "civil" and "criminal" offenses? I'm not a lawyer (but I know someone who is 😊), but it seems both of those arenas have to do with seeking justice for injured (harmed) parties. If either civil or criminal offenses go unpunished, that harms society as a whole as in those acts become sanctioned by not being punished and so are detrimental to the community.

What are your thoughts on that route?
