

"School of Athens" - The grouping to the right of center

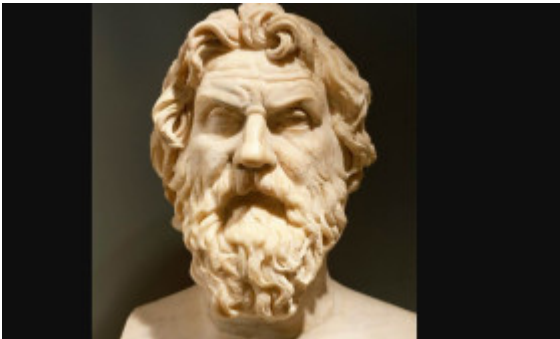

Post by "Eikadistes" of May 23, 2021 at 10:49 PM

Without invoking any symbolic imagery, two of these figures SCREAM as being in accordance with two busts that I recognize, immediately.

I don't know of anyone with such a characteristically long, pointed beard as ZENO OF CITIUM. In bust, and Zeno's features are strong.

Screen Shot 2021-05-23 at 10.42.41 PM.png

raggy face of ANTISTHENES.

Screen Shot 2021-05-23 at 10.43.50 PM.png

In another post, I suppose that the couple pointing to the bald, long-bearded man in orange strike me as Crates of Thebes and his wife Hipparchia, so the inclusion of Zeno and Antisthenes would strongly indicate that these are Cynics and Stoics.