

Translation (A poem)

Post by “Joshua” of August 5, 2021 at 2:33 AM

Quote

I still think the topic of the poem has merit, but I'm wondering if I need another structure...

Well, I can offer my...erm...tongue-in-cheek submission ☐

Note; on the Translator

Good friend beware
this slack apparel;
It once wore well
But no more does;
The wine is old,
But not the bottle—
T'will serve, but is
Not what it was.
There's use within
A cooper's barrel,
But beauty more
In ash and oak—
The poet's verse
Was fine and subtle—
The translator's
Is rancid yolk!