I would love to visit such a garden with a smiling Epicurean and a lot of good friends in it!

We can each make it happen, where-ever we live!

Or...we all decide to move to one particular city and create one.

Since I live in the U.S., then that is where I would want to set up a Garden.

Everytime I say that I want to start a Epicurean Philosophy Garden, it sounds rather "grandiose"...and yet everything must first start with an idea.

I've decided I want to start one on the East Coast...now I have only to determine the best location...I am open to feedback on that by anyone who reads this.
