

Do Pigs Value Katastematic Pleasure? ( Summer 2022 K / K Discussion)

Post by "Cassius" of July 15, 2022 at 9:48 PM

I know I seem like Negative Nellie here, but wouldn't the pleasure you get from planning and carrying out some activity in expectation of the reward that the activity will bring be something that has to ring of "action"? I thought that katastematic was supposedly implying "rest" or "static." When I am all wrapped up in building my moon rocket the expectation of getting into space may be the reward but I am certainly very involved in "action" during the building of the rocket.

Dividing things up like you are suggesting is a tempting way of categorizing things by "the time the reward is experienced," but "the timing of the reward" isn't anywhere suggested as relevant in any of the material we have been working from that DL or Cicero talk about as to "katastematic", is it?