

New Article on the Inscription (And the "Bitter Gift" Misattribution)

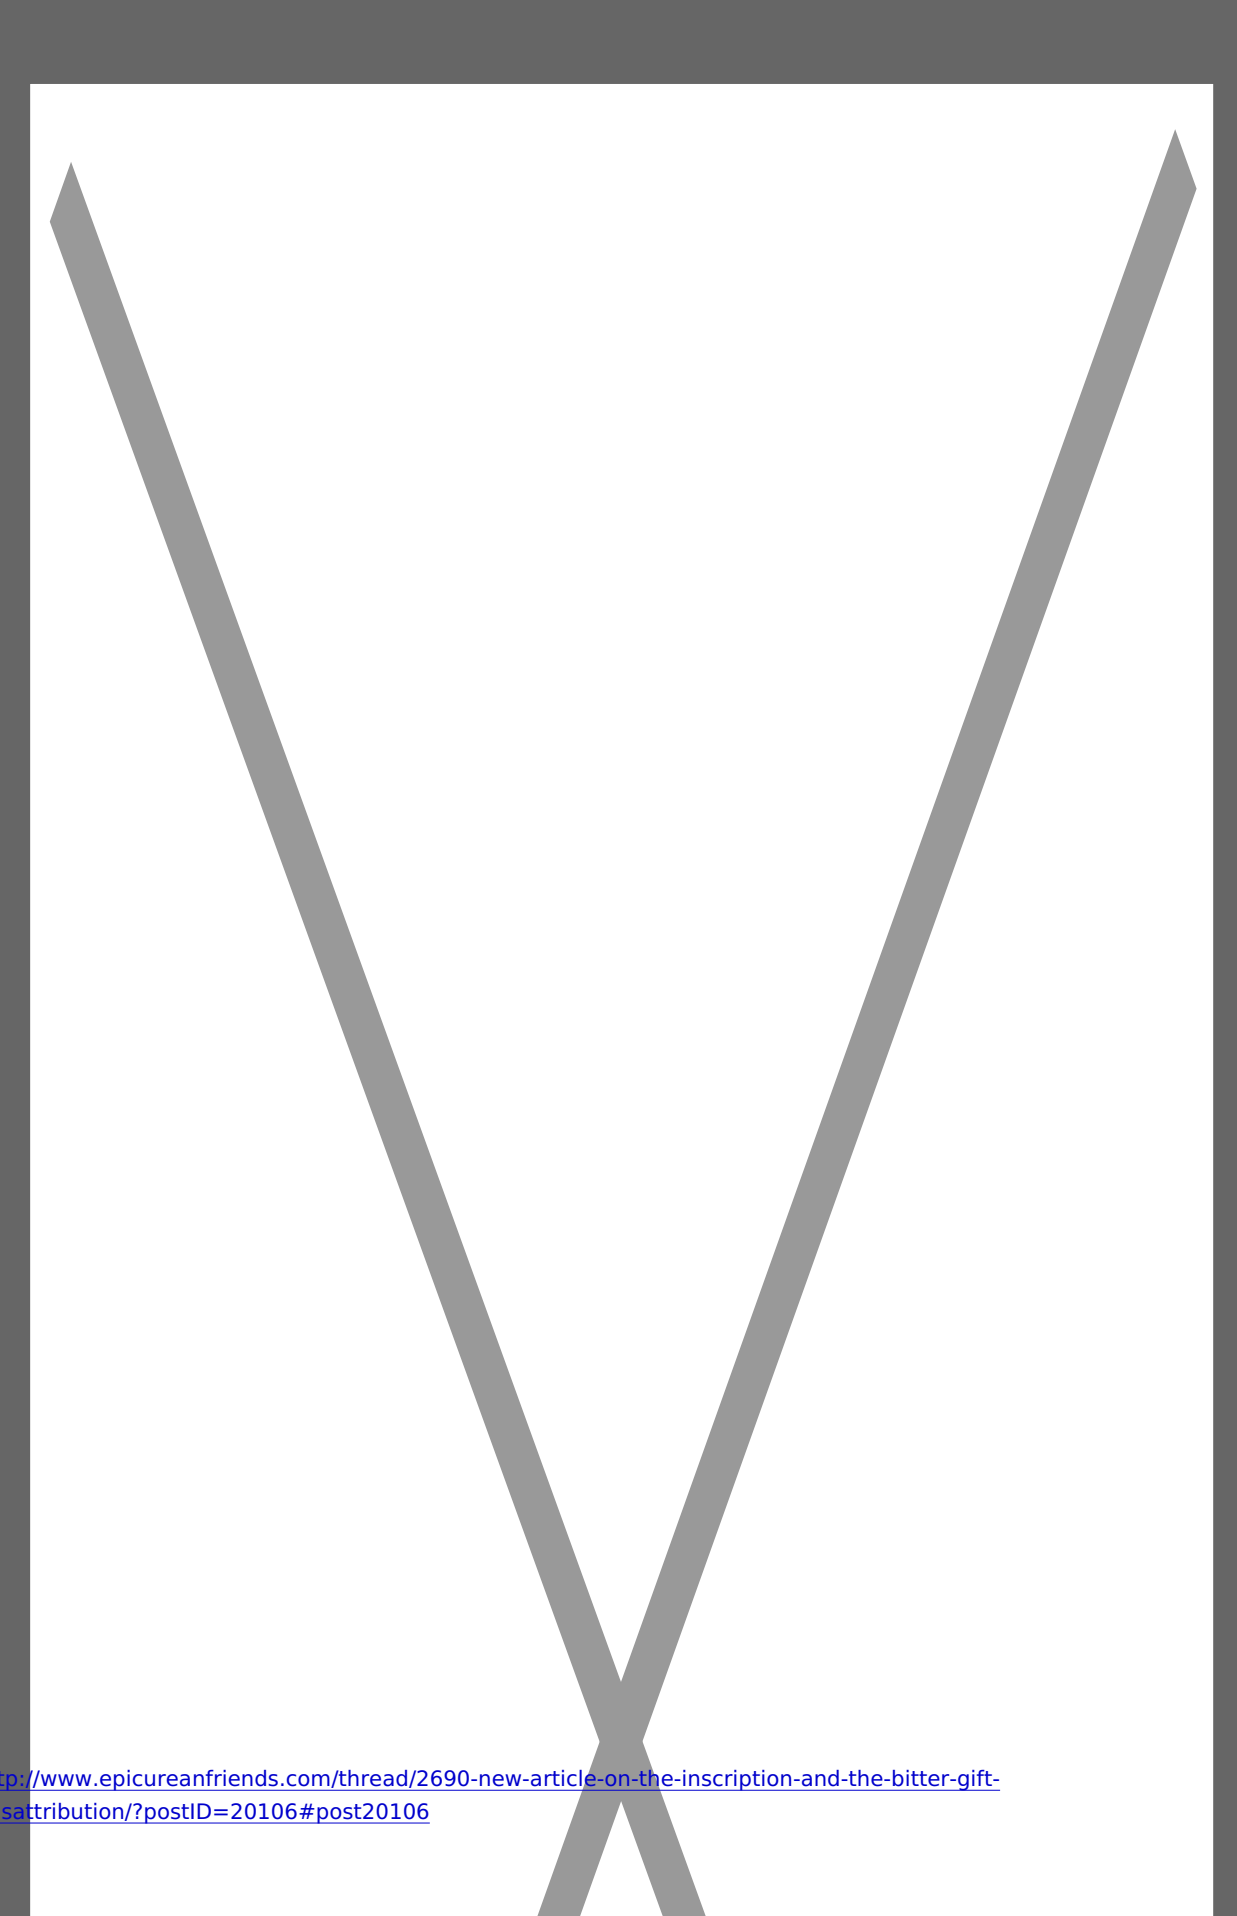

Post by "Don" of October 3, 2022 at 2:06 PM

Quote from Cassius

That "bitter gift" reference now has me curious. Doesn't seem like something someone would come up with at random, and even the "gift" part doesn't sound really like Epicurus. I wonder if this person has totally transposed this thought from someone else and that "life as a 'bitter gift'" is a core thought of a competing philosopher.

It's also word for word in the Wikipedia article:

Image not found or type unknown

<http://www.epicureanfriends.com/thread/2690-new-article-on-the-inscription-and-the-bitter-gift-misattribution/?postID=20106#post20106>

Epicureanism - Wikipedia
en.wikipedia.org