

Growth Through Sharing Graphics / Memes

Post by "Cassius" of February 7, 2019 at 8:42 AM

Over the coming weeks we'll make a series of the Principal Doctrines of Epicurus. This post is just an announcement of the series and an explanation that it would be great if those who see these posts think about how they might create versions themselves. For anyone who does that we will add their version to a gallery at Epicureanfriends.com which will be available for us to use in the future to illustrate each of the doctrines.

We would also like to see these graphics shared outside the group as a way to introduce new people to Epicurean philosophy. That means that if you compose and submit graphics it would be best to use pictures for which there are unlikely to be copyright complaints. Pictures of old artwork long in the public domain would be best, but anything you create yourself would be even better.

The point is both to encourage discussion about the substance of the doctrine in each post, and also to think about visualizations of how the substance translates into things we can see for ourselves.

A gallery of all the Principle Doctrine memes will be at the link below, which will grow as we go through each one.

<http://www.epicureanfriends.com/wcf/gallery/in...ipal-doctrines/>