

How would Epicurus view "differences from the start of life that are out of our control?"

I'll just add that some of us are "slow learners" when it comes to social conditioning, and it takes us longer to (even try to) unravel the "slow, piece-by-piece hypnosis" that was imposed on us in our formative years. I'm at the start of my seventh decade and I'm still working at it ... ☐

And sometimes it takes some traumatic event to kick-start us (mine in my fourth decade).
