

Perspectives On "Proving" That Pleasure is "The Good"

Post by "Todd" of December 21, 2022 at 3:16 PM

Quote from Cassius

Your current division concerns me in that "feeling" strikes me as a faculty, as a result of which I gather that it was included in the standard of truth along with the five senses and anticipations.

I'm thinking about ethics right now. And just the very basic ethical concepts. I have 2 more suggestions that I want to propose next, but I'd like to make sure there is some agreement on the these first, and that I'm not misstating or overlooking any viewpoints.

Not trying to list all the concepts involved in ethics, much less the entire philosophy!

Quote from Cassius

"The Good / End/ Telos" appears to me to designate a destination or a concept describing an overall assessment.

Don't care (right now) how these terms were used in ancient Greece generally. I care how we would understand them as Epicureans. And I think to us they are just other words that describe pleasure.