

Perspectives On "Proving" That Pleasure is "The Good"

Post by "Todd" of December 24, 2022 at 5:05 PM

Quote

Plato sought to distinguish sophists from philosophers, arguing that a sophist was a person who made his living through deception, whereas a philosopher was a lover of wisdom who sought the truth.

LOL!

Student: Master Plato, how can one distinguish a philosopher from a sophist?

Plato: a philosopher is a person who loves wisdom and truth, such as myself. A sophist is a lying liar who lies.

That's from the Wikipedia entry for Sophist, BTW - not from the paper Don linked to.