Thank you Martin!

Do we know who is referred to here as challenging the authorship?

Already in antiquity there was no lack of people who rejected Epicurus' authorship of some of the Principal Doctrines (Κυριαὶ δοξαί) (cf. fr. 28).

It looks like fragment 28 is on pages 27-29 of the book, noting Diogenes Laertius and Philodemus, and refers, after a section in Greek, to PD31 to PD40.

I can try to tackle the Greek later.
