

Mark Twain Quote (On Death)

Post by “Don” of December 5, 2024 at 7:03 AM

Quote from Cassius

As an example maybe in the end he saw himself more as an "entertainer" than a real "social reformer" or "philosopher." I haven't read nearly enough of his overall work to have a basis for a firm opinion.

Same here. My intuition tells me he would think of himself as more "social commentator" than reformer.

Fwiw, one of Twain's friends and in part his inspiration for performance was Artemus Ward, the stage name and nom de plume of Charles Farrar Browne:

Image not found or type unknown

Charles Farrar Browne - Wikipedia
en.wikipedia.org