

The Deep-Set Boundary Stone - Epicurus vs. Geometry In Ethics - Discussion

Post by “Kalosyni” of January 30, 2025 at 7:03 AM

Regarding geometry, I found this article, which says Pappus of Alexandria talked about the hexagon, and it would also be Pythagoras who talked about the ideas of the hexagon as the perfect shape of nature.

Image not found or type unknown

The hexagon shape and why it shows up so much in nature

The hexagon is surprisingly present in many parts of nature.
www.zmescience.com

(Cassius if there is a better place for this article please move this)

<http://www.epicureanfriends.com/thread/4250-the-deep-set-boundary-stone-epicurus-vs-geometry-in-ethics-discussion/?postID=33896#post33896>