

"Christianizing the Roman Empire (A.D. 100-400)"

Ramsay MacMullen, Yale UP, 1984

Post by "Sam_Qwerty" of July 27, 2025 at 8:16 PM

I was watching a YouTube video on this topic. The Youtuber put it this way: Christianity didn't win because it had better answers. It won because it took control of power and outlawed the questions. The collapse of the Roman Empire was a political and military event. But the dark ages were a result of Christian intolerance for intellectual debate.