

Preuss - "Epicurean Ethics - Katastematic Hedonism"

Post by "Eikadistes" of August 14, 2025 at 11:26 AM

A passing thought I recently had about using AI:

I hear that a profuse change in the world disposes you toward generating content with AI. As long as you neither disregard practice and rehearsal, nor demand the respect of others, nor disrupt the artistic profitability of others, nor ruin your own reputation, nor profit from plagiarism, do as you please according to your own preference. It is impossible however not to be a little constrained by at least one of these complications; therefore AI is never advantageous, and desirable only if it has not caused harm.