1. The differences seem too small that I could find a short statement to characterize them.
2. The Canon instead of just reason, which is "downgraded" to an essential tool for sanity checks, the hedonic calculus, work and communication
3. Long-term pleasure, which includes action upon compassion for people and animals in the inner circles with disregard for self-interest
4. Democracy with strongly regulated capitalism and influenced by regional culture (as exemplified in some European countries and Japan, whereby none of them is already close to an "ideal" state)
