

Nature and Pleasure and Pain

Post by "Cassius" of August 18, 2019 at 8:10 PM

Two outstanding answers and I agree with them. These animals are not being led by gods or thinking about their duties. They feel emotions toward their offspring just as humans so and the feeling of pain of seeing them threatened, and the feeling of reward of having them safe, are their motivators just like with humans.

Ultimately there is no motivating force in life other than feeling.