

Responding to the Arguments Against Pleasure In Cicero's "On Ends" Book 2

Post by "Cassius" of February 3, 2018 at 6:04 AM

Just to continue while I am thinking about it, I perceive you embrace this formulation because you are Ok that what it really means is "when I am without pain I need no more pleasure because I am already in the highest state of pleasure possible" --- and so you interpret this passage as a full and complete endorsement of pleasure as the goal of life, Correct?