

Lucretius - Epicureanfriends.com Reference Edition - Version 01 - 01/11/20

Post by "Cassius" of January 11, 2020 at 11:31 AM

Here is a download link for the first public edition of this PDF, downloadable at Archive.org. I will be working on upgrades and revisions to this over time and will post those in this same location. The download is approximately 125 megabytes in size, so be careful of your personal data caps and restrictions. Once archive.org finishes processing it, it should be readable online without downloading the full edition, however you may want to so that you can set your own bookmarks.

This PDF contains the public domain versions of the 1743 Edition, the Hugh Munro Edition, and the Cyril Bailey Edition. The main value of this particular PDF version is in the bookmarks and the organization of the material into one place. If you have suggestions for improvements, please let me know, as I hope to upgrade this in future editions with much more reference bookmarking, linking, and commentary.

On The Nature Of Things

EpicureanFriends.com Reference Edition

Version 1.0 – 1/1/2020

Compiled By Cassius Amicus And Volunteers At EpicureanFriends.com

No copyright is claimed on any material contained in this ebook. All contents of this ebook we either prepared by Cassius Amicus or are believed to be in the public domain and / or subject to fair use and related legal doctrines which allow its distribution in this form. This ebook is distributed free and without charge to the reader. It may be copied, distributed, reposted, reprinted and shared, provided it appears in its entirety without alteration, and the reader is not charged to access it.

This document has been prepared for use in any standard PDF reader. Navigation is via bookmarks which are arranged in outline form in the Bookmark Panel, accessible through your PDF reader.

This PDF contains three public domain English translations of Lucretius:

- (1) The 1743 Edition, published by Daniel Browne “at the Black Swan without Temple-Bar” in London. The translator of this work is not listed in the book and is currently unknown. If anyone has access to that information please contact us so we can credit the translator properly.
- (2) The 1900 H.A.J. Munro Edition, published by George Bell and Sons in London. This version is the most literal of the three editions.
- (3) The 1936 Cyril Bailey Edition, published by Oxford University Press. Bailey’s version may be easier to read than Munro, and contains more recent research than the other two editions, but Bailey’s editorial choices should be compared to the earlier editions as he is the least sympathetic to Epicurus of these three translators.

Latin and English versions are included on facing pages in the 1743 Edition. The H.A.J. Munro Latin Edition is also contained in this PDF edition. Explanatory Notes are included along with the text in the 1743 Edition. The Munro Explanatory Notes and the Bailey Explanatory Notes are also included here.

1743 Edition	Book 1	Book 2	Book 3	Book 4	Book 5	Book 6
Munro	Book 1	Book 2	Book 3	Book 4	Book 5	Book 6
Bailey	Book 1	Book 2	Book 3	Book 4	Book 5	Book 6
Munro Notes	Book 1	Book 2	Book 3	Book 4	Book 5	Book 6
Bailey Notes	Book 1	Book 2	Book 3	Book 4	Book 5	Book 6
Munro Latin	Book 1	Book 2	Book 3	Book 4	Book 5	Book 6

For updated editions of this PDF and for more information on the material presented here, see: www.EpicureanFriends.com and LucretiusToday.com

Note: As of this moment five hours after uploading, the Archive.org pages says that it is still processing the file and here is no "preview" available. I am hoping when the processing is finished we will be able to view and flip through the pages at the archive.org site, and that will allow us to post links to particular pages to aid in the discussions.