

Godless Mom: Two Blog Articles mention Epicurus

Post by “Don” of December 6, 2023 at 6:56 AM

The articles are meant to be humorous, and Godless Mom's social media channels are amusing.

Image not found or type unknown

Top 10 Influential Atheists in History and Their Impact

The people from history who had a significant influence on atheism and atheists.

www.godlessmom.com

Godless Mom included Epicurus in her list of "influential atheists." Her take on Epicurus is obviously not meant to be exhaustive! And her "While not an atheist in the modern sense, his ideas laid the groundwork for secular thought" seems spot on to me.

Epicurus gets a longer look in "A Very Quick and Quite Silly History of Atheism"

Image not found or type unknown

A Very Quick and Quite Silly History of Atheism

Taking a brief look at atheism and atheists throughout human history.

www.godlessmom.com

Again, purposefully silly! She's not a historian. But it was a fun find, and I think does not misrepresent Epicurus. She, of course, mentions "bread and cheese" but at least she doesn't imply what many others do with that. I liked "chilling in his garden"!