

Will Epicurus and Pirrone save Europe?

Post by “michelepinto” of April 9, 2019 at 3:48 AM

The epiStoa association takes its name from the two major Hellenistic philosophical schools: that of Epicurus and the Stoa.

 epiStoa, whose symbol is a Roman aqueduct, European Values and Languages - From Antiquity To Today.

eStoa is a European initiative to foster and promote European Values - human rights, democracy and the rule of law - and the impact of the Ancient Languages on modern Europe.

For more information: <http://epistoa.eu/>

Post by “michelepinto” of April 9, 2019 at 3:52 AM

With this post I started translating all the new Italian posts on <http://www.epicuro.org> into English.

But the question is: why is the e of epicurus tiny and the S of Stoa is capitalized? 😊

Post by “Cassius” of April 9, 2019 at 5:38 AM

(1) Even before reading the article I am immediately suspicious of efforts to combine Epicurus and the stoa BUT

(2) I immediately am very pleased to hear about postings on Epicuro.org being translated into English! Great news! 😊

(3) Now after checking out the page it seems to be very general, with not much in the way of detailed comment. And it looks perhaps most focused on the influence of the ancient languages.

Post by "Cassius" of April 9, 2019 at 5:43 AM

I see that anyone is invited to participate at the rate of 60 pounds per year --

2. Every member contributes a yearly fee of 60 €
(due on the 15th of January of every year, starting in the first year after entry).

The members' contributions are used to fund students' stipends and to cover running costs.

Students may acquire their share in rates of 20 € over five years and contribute a reduced yearly rate of 40 €/a over the same period.

Post by "Cassius" of April 9, 2019 at 5:45 AM

Elli you will be interested in this screenshot:

Partner Institutions

epicurea collaborates and exchanges information with institutions relevant to its goals.

The city of Bordeaux with Montaigne and Bourkegas, two of the most prominent and influential figures in humanism and the history of institutions. The center where they lived and worked are well preserved and can be visited. The Musée d'histoire naturelle-Montaigne's ornate library and many other highly interesting details.

Friends of Epicurean Philosophy "Society of Athens" (www.epicurea.org)
The association organizes annual meetings on Epicurean philosophy attracting a large number of people.

Hellenic Museum (www.hellenicmuseum.org) is a convention center on the northern shore of the Peloponnese. It has a focus on ancient and modern Greek culture and language.