

Long and Sedley, Hellenistic Philosophers, "Gods"

Food for thought, Cassius . Thanks for digging back into Jackson. Lots to think about. 🤔

For the time being, I'm still in the Sedley/idealist camp. From my perspective, either position remains within Epicureanism so we can have a vigorous debate within the big tent 😊

I'm posting because I just had the thought that the reason that prolepses of both justice and the gods are talked about in the texts is because both are thought constructs. The whole prolepses thing is a hard nut to crack.
