

General Thoughts on "Truth" (At least in terms of Justice)

Post by "Hiram" of April 25, 2018 at 9:40 AM

Also, on justice as an instinct / anticipation:

Monkeys Sense Injustice as Well

Dogs sense injustice!

Dogs refuse to play ball if they have been treated unfairly A sense of justice could be crucial for social animals and may have played a role in the evolution of cooperation

Instincts are born OF THE BODY and are physical, natural.

It seems to me that, just as with the instincts and faculties in our brain that help us to detect sunlight and align ourselves with the circadian rhythms of the planet, there is an inner mathematics that our body is naturally disposed to carry out, but this mathematics in the case of justice seems to be applied to symmetry (and ergo to aesthetics) in interpersonal relations.