

"Nothing Comes from Nothing" and Parmenides

Post by "Bryan" of January 21, 2021 at 3:31 PM

"Observation is everything" is the position of a type of skeptic, who does not want to form a workable and understandable mental model of how nature works. We are far closer to "everything we think we base on observation, and we infer by analogy from this empirical basis in order to conceive that which cannot be observed."