

Episode Seventy-One - The Formation Of the World (Our Part of the Universe)

Post by “Don” of May 20, 2021 at 7:33 AM

That list we discussed in Latin:

intervalla vias conexus pondera plagas concursum motus turbabat proelia miscens

Browne:

intervals, connections, weights, strokes, unions, and motions, and kept them so continually at war,

Google translate:

Intervals between these ways weights blows emotional disturbance mixing melee battles

For different shapes and various shapes; intervalla

intervallum n (genitive intervallī); second declension

- The open space within the vallum of a camp or between palisades or ramparts.

- interval, distance

- interval of time, pause, intermission

- difference

- (music) interval

vias

via f (genitive viae); first declension

- road, street, path

- highway

- way, method, manner, mode

- the right way
- (figuratively) journey, course, route conexus

cōnexus (conn-), ūs, m. conecto, l.a joining together, combination, connection (several times in Lucr., elsewh. rare), Lucr. 3, 556; Vitruv. 10, 1, 5.—In plur., Lucr. 1, 634; 2, 726; 2, 1020; 5, 443.

pondera

pondus n (genitive ponderis); third declension

- weight
- weight of a pound
- heaviness, weight of a body
- load, burden
- quantity, number, multitude
- consequence, importance
- (of character) firmness, constancy plagas

plāga f (genitive plāgae); first declension

- plague, misfortune
- stroke, blow, cut, strike
- wound, gash, injury concursum

concursum (feminine concursa, neuter concursum); first/second-declension participle

- flocked
- concurred
- coincided motus

mōtus (feminine mōta, neuter mōtum); first/second-declension participle

- moved, stirred, disturbed, having been moved
- aroused, excited, begun, inspired, having been aroused
- troubled, concerned, tormented, having been troubled