

Dealing With Friends Who Are Struggling

In all the situations you describe.

Flanders used to be very catholic. Suffering in silence was the way to earn heaven. Flanders was also the battlefield of Europe for hundreds of years, with increasingly dominance by strange countries.

‘Keep silent and endure your pain and destiny’, is in the national character. And complain to your friends about that pain and destiny.

If I show them possible solutions, that means the end of their martyrdom, I think.

In fact...they are not choosing happiness, which is quite easy to find in this prosperous country and times.
