

"Wise Man" Saying as to Rejoicing At the Misfortune of Another

Post by "Don" of June 28, 2021 at 7:09 PM

Where is this? I don't see that in my version that I did:
<https://sites.google.com/view/epicureansage>

There's a section in Lucretius where he talks about being on hill and seeing a shipwreck and being grateful for not being involved in the catastrophe. Or something like that. But I don't remember this in the "wise man" sayings.

I see this in the Perseus edition online: "He will be grateful to anyone when he is corrected." DL X.120. <http://www.perseus.tufts.edu/hopper/text?do...0%3Achapter%3D1>