

Not all research is scientific, or involves critical thinking.

Post by "Cassius" of July 31, 2021 at 7:14 AM

Quote

according to Epicurus, our free will cannot be an emergent property and must belong to the atoms themselves. The physical and ethical consequences of the swerve are, according to these accounts, discrete. The will to depart slightly from downward fall through the void has no apparent ethical goal, and free will, although present at the atomic level, is not manifest in all compounds.

WHAT??????

Cannot be an emergent property????

Free will is present at the atomic level?????

No!