Thanks Cassius and Martin!

Cassius, I appreciate that you had a list of main reading recommendations -- I've ordered all (other than those on on the site) and should get DeWitt today as well as the Diogenes Laertius biography. Also, good to be alerted to Cicero's anti-Epicurean lawyer arguments -- I'll look for them now.

Would you and/or Martin have any recommendations for Greek and Latin introductions or grammars. It's been decades since I studied either language.
