Χαίρε, AGB! Welcome!

I can't help too much with Latin, but I'd recommend taking a look at:

JACT Reading Greek collection. There are actually 3 books one needs: Reading Text, Exercises, Self-Learner Notes, so it can get a little pricey.

Teach Yourself Ancient Greek. I like this because it uses snippets and longer paragraphs of actual text right from the start.

There are some very good resources online as well, including:

Luke Ranieri's YouTube Channels: Scorpio Martianus especially his Ancient Greek in Action! series.

Textkit Greek and Latin Forum has recommendations and download for public domain books

I also can't say enough good things about the Perseus Digital Library's Greek and Latin texts. There are both original texts and English translations and the classical texts are clickable so each word will open up a dictionary entry. Great for puzzling through texts.

I hope that helps. Welcome aboard!
