Don , I agree with your statements, but can't really „feel“ through them. Will take a Little more time and think about that 😊

Martin , I also agree with your statement that the Ethics still remain valid, but I still have the feeling that Epicurus had a few inconsistencies in his physics. His idea, that the Sun is as big as it seems (—> DeWitt), is very naive, even in the ancient world. As I've said, that doesn't mean that the Ethics are worthless, only that the Physics seems to be not refined by today's standards, at least as far as I can judge.
