

Nate's "Allegory of the Oasis" Graphic

Yes, LD, that is a good question. Also, I gather you are probably not checking the FB location (and that is wise for all the reasons we have discussed) but Nate is motivated to do a revision, so that's why these recent posts here.

I think he is sort of rethinking the whole "motif" (right word?) to see if he can improve it. In that regard I am remembering that you were a fan of the dinosaur, of which I approve too, but I am suggesting as currently posed it might not be clear to a lot of people why they should put themselves in the place of, and identify with, the dinosaur."

Of course that comes naturally to me personally, superannuated as I am, but possibly not to the younger people. So if you have any comments on that, they might be good to add here and I will make sure @Nate sees them.
