

Sedley paper on Plato with interesting Epicurean implications

Post by "Cassius" of April 30, 2022 at 9:26 AM

I haven't had a chance to look at it yet but it always confuses me when Plato or another Greek seems to be talking in terms that are almost "monotheistic." That makes it almost sound like Epicurus was more in accord with the common Greek religion (in terms of talking about multiple "gods") than was Plato or someone else who was tending toward monotheism.