After reading some of the other interactions on the forum, I think I would categorize myself more as an eclectic with my current philosophizing and will take the prevailing wisdom to read DeWitt and other Epicurean works before engaging too much on this forum with the ideas I've been mulling over.

However, I want to say that I am excited to be here and I've been experiencing a lot of zeal and exuberance since really engaging with Epicurean content from this group as well as Hiram's work over the past 10 months or so. Putting pleasurable sensation at the forefront of my life has really opened me up to all the nuances and fullness of being human, has made me a better father and husband, and has been incredibly therapeutic for some deeply disturbed states of mind I've experienced in the recent past. Cheers!
