

Episode One Hundred Forty-Four - Diogenes of Oinoanda (Part 4) Virtue Not The Highest Good

Post by “Don” of October 22, 2022 at 2:51 PM

The discussion of virtue dovetails nicely with my reading of Aristotle's Nichomachean Ethics.

Epicurean Sage - Nichomachean Ethics: Book 2

< Back to Book 1 Commentary In Book 2, Aristotle starts to fill in some details of what he means by “virtue.” Aristotle claims virtue is of two kinds: 1)...

sites.google.com

Book 2 starts his investigation of what virtue (Αρήτη "excellence, virtue") is. For all his words, I don't know if he really ever defines what virtue is. He dances around it and entertains some notions but never nails down s hard and fast rule.

I'll let anyone interested read my commentary to see my thoughts on Aristotle's attempts at defining it.