

Episode 156 - Lucretius Today Interviews Dr. Emily Austin - Part One

I have been listening to this episode several times to try to think about how to expand on some of the details.

I think our serendipitous references "going to Rome" proved to be a good way of visualizing the question of how much pleasure to pursue in life. Dr Austin herself was reflecting on the word "enrich" as a way to look at it.

I wonder if anyone has any thoughts on the usefulness of this analogy and the direction the discussion took.

How many times should we desire to visit Rome?
