

Welcome DMTaylor!

Post by "Cassius" of March 30, 2023 at 10:07 PM

For those who may miss it, DMTaylor posted this on her wall:

Hi, I'm Diane. Thanks for the welcome. I am not a scholar. I'm a retired RN, age 71 years spanning rejection of Calvinist Sunday school, early adulthood of psychedelized youth, liberal education, strong work ethic, all the while knowing that pleasure was my principle. My philosophical reading and studies were in Eastern traditions. In a book club, I read Stephen Greenblatt's The Swerve, How the World Became Modern, with a chapter on Lucretius; the first time I learned of Epicurus and his philosophy. Instant resonance! I'm here to learn more.

I read Emily Austin's article on Aeon website, which led me here.

<https://www.epicureanfriends.com/wcf/user/516-dmtaylor/#wall/comment453>

Welcome Diane!