Hello, Fellow Lovers of Wisdom.

Allow me to steal some of your time by introducing myself. I apologise in advance if some of my thoughts are not clearly formulated. I'm not native English speaker.

Philosophy was always something close to my heart. Especially practical philosophy. I guess I can't resist possibility of putting beautiful ideas into practice and see if they work for me. Around two years ago I was reading about Hellenistic age and I discovered a dude with ideas that looked interesting at the first glance. It didn't take me many glances to realise that these interesting ideas were truly beautiful. And so my acquaintance with Epicurus began.

I started to study Epicureanism. The more I studied, the more I loved it. I got to know few other interesting people on the way. Democritus blew my mind with his ideas. Lucretius made me pick up my jaw from the floor more times than I can count (and I can count to ten or so pretty well, most of the times).

Epicurus, Democritus, Lucretius are dead. You are alive. So here I am. Hoping to get to know few more interesting people before we all end up in the Sixth Circle of Hell with smiles on our faces knowing we'd make substantial savings on heating.

Warmly,

TauPhi
