

Jupyter Notebook (Used in Lucretius Comparison_

Post by "Cassius" of May 17, 2023 at 9:04 AM

It looks like the full PDF of the paper is here:

Image not found or type unknown

lucretius-translations-comparison/HMatulis-DH-Project-Course-Lucretius-Translations-Comparison.pdf at main · HaraldsDev/lucretius-translations-comparison

DH Project course - Comparison of 6 English translations of Lucretius "De rerum natura" -...
github.com

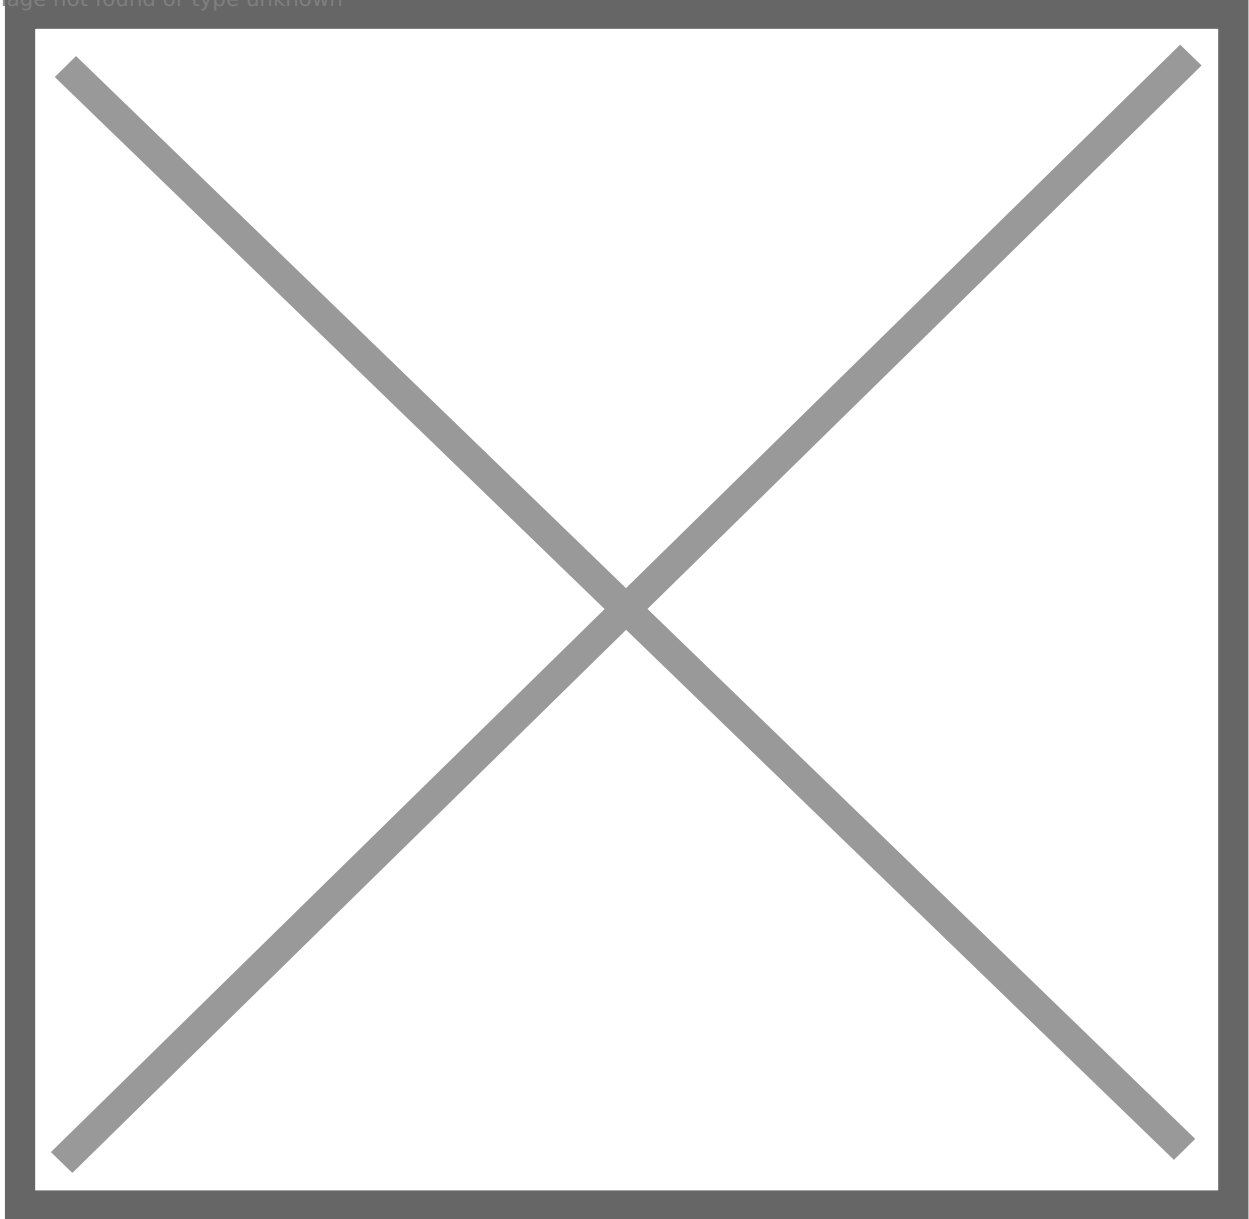

Boy this guy is good -- writing it and uploading it to github for revisions. This is a great way to take advantage of technology to do things! TauPhi and Cleveland Okie It looks like he isn't really taking advantage of github for revisions, but this is the start of the way to publish a paper and then work on it collaboratively with extremely fine grained control over what revisions are accepted in to the main trunk of the paper.

<https://www.epicureanfriends.com/thread/3066-jupyter-notebook-used-in-lucretius-comparison/?postID=23985#post23985>

I am not familiar with this project but it looks like he prepared it in this format --

Image not found or type unknown

Project Jupyter

The Jupyter Notebook is a web-based interactive computing platform. The notebook combines live code, equations, narrative text, visualizations, interactive...

jupyter.org

<https://www.epicureanfriends.com/thread/3066-jupyter-notebook-used-in-lucretius-comparison/?postID=23985#post23985>