Hello!

A little bit about myself. I have always been interested in searching for the best way to live life. I first looked at religions such as Christianity and Buddhism. Neither of which interested me for long. I then looked at Stoicism since that seems to be the most common Ancient Greek philosophy people try to practice, and because we have a lot of information about Stoicism as more texts have survived. But after a while I decided to take a look at the opposing side of Stoicism–Epicureanism. I have studied a bit and have lurked at this forum for a while before creating this account. I am interested in learning more about Epicureanism and discussing the philosophy. I believe it would be good to bring this philosophy back and have people practice it like so many did over 2000 years ago. What Epicurus believed makes a lot of sense to me.
