Quote from Don

And a mountain could be a metaphorical boundary marker, too.

That's a great point: that imagery might even convey the idea of a summit, which might be interesting if we consider the bottom of the mountain to be the summit of pleasure and the top of the mountain to be the peak of pain.

I'll keep that in mind and keep an eye out for "summit" or "some extent of a mountain" elsewhere.
