Hey all,

Thank you for having me. Also, it is so nice of you to provide a reading list. I can't wait to learn more about this philosophy. I first heard about Epicurus when I was reading/listening Seneca, Epictetus and Marcus Aurelius. But with them I had many disagreements on how to live and think. I discovered that many things I find useful and logical in their writings comes from epicurean way of thinking. Basically that is why I am here. However my english is not great, and I am not a well read person. I must also confess that clear thinking is something I have being struggling my whole life. So rather than talking, I will be mostly listening on the forums. And after I gather a little bit courage and hopefully a lot of knowledge, I might come up with some questions.

I am off to learn about absolute virtues now.
