

Please, no dogmatism, no absolute truths

Post by "michelepinto" of April 1, 2019 at 11:28 AM

The Italian word "dogma" means: "Principle that is accepted as true or just, without critical examination or discussion: proclaim a dogma: in Catholic theology, truth revealed by God or defined by the Church as such, imposed on believers as an article of faith."

In English the meaning is: "A principle or set of principles laid down by an authority as incontrovertibly true."

This kind of "dogma" is the only one I do not want.

I'm sorry for the misunderstanding.