Oh, that is just Cicero and his discussion in De Natura Deorum "membris hominis praeditum omnibus usu membrorum ne minimo quidem, exilem quendam atque perlucidum, nihil cuiquam tribuentem nihil gratificantem, omnino nihil curantem nihil agentem."

διφυῆς did not make any sense to me, and διαφανές is used by the good Robert Philippson (https://de.wikisource.org/wiki/Robert_Philippson) and Vincenzo de Falco.
