michelepinto has sent me this from his newsletter. I am afraid the Google Translate is poor but enough to give us a sense of this year's festival:

Happy Venti -,

I am writing to you just a few minutes before it ends on February 20 to inform you that this year the Epicurean Festival will be held on July 16 and 17, as always in Senigallia.

There is still no officiality and nothing is definitive, but I can anticipate many things already. We will be hosted again at the Rotonda a Mare.

The title will be "Seeing the invisible" and the protagonists will obviously be the Papyri of Herculaneum. The day of Wednesday 17 July will be dedicated to them.

July 16, on the other hand, will be a less academic day and more dedicated to militant epicureanism.

I take this opportunity to summarize the latest articles on the site.

February was a month full of epicurean events. An important 7 was held event academic in Venice. In Pallini in Greece it has just ended on 14th Pan-Hellenic Epicurean Symposium.

You can find a slight reflection on the Jungle Book here.

The most interesting thing, which newspapers around the world have talked about, is undoubtedly the Vesuvius Challenge.

Here the interview with the papyrologist Ginaluca del Mastro :

Before the greetings I wanted to tell you that the number of recipients of this email has grown and exceeded 400 readers. I thank you one by one for your patience and I wait for you all in Senigallia.

With epicurean friendship ,

Michele
