Don't fear god,

Just out of curiosity, how would you interpret that one for yourself, or to someone to whom you want to be as clear as possible?

For myself, this comes naturally. I have been an atheist since I was ten years old. I don't fear a being, or the torture said being would have in store for me, that I don't believe in.

For the religious, it depends on the individual believer and how they interpret holy scripture.

I think the three part cure is a useful thing to keep in mind for my own life. I think it explains a lot of the unnecessary fears and anxieties that we put on ourselves out of plain habit.
