

Episode 254 - The Skeptic Asks: Does Not Epicurus Undermine Religion As Much As Any Outright Atheist? - Cicero's OTNOTG 29

Post by “Don” of November 11, 2024 at 10:57 AM

As I understand, both Lucretius and Epicurus believed that true, correct understanding of the gods was pietas / εὐσέβεια. Does it seem Lucretius was more concerned with pietas than religio, the inward correct understanding than the outward visible practices? If the inside was correct, the practices could reflect that inward understanding.