

Welcome JamesPConnolly!

Post by “JamesPConnolly” of January 27, 2025 at 11:56 AM

Greetings all, in these interesting times we are in, the few thoughts we have straight from Epicurus are most useful in living a good life. I was raised in France where in the lycée we all do philosophy, and I was very keen on this, and still am, and on conversation in general. I then ended up in physics, which is, of course, a branch of philosophy, now on renewable energy from a semiconductor physics perspective.

And I happened across this site for reasons I forget, and am adding this address to the two others I frequently refer to which are epicurus.net and Plato over at Stanford.

Salutations, James