

April 7, 2025 - First Monday Epicurean Philosophy Zoom - Agenda

Post by "AxA" of April 8, 2025 at 4:59 PM

I'm not convinced of the value of "morality" as a concept as I think my preference to behave in ways considered "moral" comes from a combination of the practical value of human cooperation as well as an aesthetic sense of "immoral" actions being "ugly". But when I ask why they're ugly, I'm not clear on the origin of this aesthetic sense that finds unjust actions ugly and therefore painful.